

Employment Overview for F-1 Students

Employment is a benefit granted to eligible F-1 international students. The U.S. Department of Homeland Security permits F-1 international students to engage in employment based upon pre-authorization by either the school's international student office or the USCIS. Below is a brief outline of the different types of employment opportunities available to F-1 students. Students interested in employment should attend one of the employment workshops offered by the International Student Programs (ISP) and speak to the International Student Advisor about the requirements, as well as prepare for job search with the Career Center, at least one quarter in advance.

I. On-Campus Employment

Students must submit their application to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) as nearly as 120 days prior to the beginning of their work authorization.
